

ENVIRONMENTAL ADVISORY COMMITTEE

MEMBER PROFILE: KATHY CAMPBELL

The City of Campbell River's Environmental Advisory Committee makes recommendations to Council on environmental matters concerning water, land and air. The committee is made up of community members with the unique skills and knowledge to provide Council with thoughtful and comprehensive advice.

As the Qualified Environmental Professional for the Environmental Committee, and Registered Professional Biologist, Kathy Campbell brings more than 20 years of local and international experience to the group. She has worked locally and internationally for all levels of government as well as consulting for business and industry. This is her first term as a committee member, however she previously served the committee as the Environmental Coordinator for the City and as staff liaison for the Environmental Advisory Committee. Kathy's special interests are in aquatic ecology, water resources and environmental education. She is currently working on projects in alternative energy systems, First Nations technical skill development and sustainable community development.

"I appreciate being part of such a dedicated and knowledgeable group and enjoy the thoughtful discussion that precedes all initiatives that the EAC recommends to Council," Kathy says.
