CALL for VOLUNTEERS Join an advisory committee

Campbell River City Council invites volunteers to join three new advisory committees on community planning, environmental protection and community health/public safety.

Be part of the teams that advise City Council on widely-held priorities – to help continue the momentum toward achieving the community's long-term vision for Campbell River.

The new advisory committees shall consist of not less than nine voting members, and not more than ten voting members, one non-voting Council liaison and up to two ex-officio (non-voting) members.

Community Planning Advisory Committee – make recommendations on community visioning topics such as long-range planning, transportation, utilities and parks planning, the Official Community Plan and Zoning bylaws, affordable housing, economic and development issues and opportunities, public art, neighbourhood development and downtown revitalization and other matters as referred by Council.

Environmental Advisory Committee – advise on issues related to waterfront, foreshore and estuary restoration and protection, conservation areas and passive parks, streams and wetlands, landfills, organic waste (composting), energy and emissions, the effects of climate change (storm severity, sea level rise), watershed and water conservation, ecosystem services and other matters as referred by Council.

Community Health & Public Safety Advisory Committee – make recommendations on matters concerning community health and social sustainability, including public safety, community security, homelessness, emergency and transition housing, the opioid crisis and social policy development and other matters as referenced by Council.

Find more information and applications at City Hall or online at campbellriver.ca/advisorycommittees

Apply today! Deadline is 4:30 p.m., Friday, November 16, 2018.
